

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS

UDALL CENTER FELLOWS PROGRAM

Academic Year 2009-10

The Udall Center for Studies in Public Policy at The University of Arizona announces its Fellows Program for 2009-10. Fellows will be affiliated with the Center and will study an aspect of public policy. Since the program's inception in 1990, the Center has hosted 110 Fellows representing 35 departments or centers at the UA.

The Center invites proposals on topics that span the range of public policy. The projects of previous Fellows tend to cluster in several thematic areas: environment and natural resources; women, minorities, and Indigenous peoples; health and human development; the theory of democracy and institutions; conflict resolution and decision-making; economic development; and science, technology, and society.

Terms of the Fellowship. Fellowships are for one semester only. The salaries of successful applicants will be covered by release-time, sabbaticals, or other funds provided by the home colleges, departments, or research centers. Potential applicants should discuss the prospects of such support with the appropriate administrators. For faculty and staff affiliated with the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences or the Institute for Environment and Society (formerly, Institute for the Study of Planet Earth), some stipend support is available from those units.

Application Procedure. Each applicant should submit: (1) a brief statement describing general policy research interests; (2) plans for a specific project to be undertaken as a Udall Center Fellow (up to five pages); (3) a plan identifying any specific proposals already submitted or to be submitted for external support for the project; (4) a curriculum vitae; (5) a letter of support from the department head, director, or dean; and (6) and a letter of reference. Applicants need to specify the semester for which they are applying (Fall 2009, Spring 2010, or no preference). Packets should be submitted to the Udall Center at 803 East First Street by March 23, 2009. For more information, consult the Udall Center's home page at <udallcenter.arizona.edu> or call Denise Lum at 626-4393.

Selection. Applications will be reviewed by a panel drawn from the Udall Center's former Fellows and other UA faculty. The Center expects to announce the results of the competition in April 2009.

Telephone: (520) 626-4393 • Fax: (520) 626-3664 • E-mail: dlum@u.arizona.edu • <udallcenter.arizona.edu>

Established in 1987, the Udall Center for Studies in Public Policy conducts policy-relevant, interdisciplinary research and forums that link scholarship and education with decision-making. The Center specializes in issues concerning: (1) environmental policy, primarily in the Southwest and U.S.-Mexico border region; (2) immigration policy of the United States; and (3) Indigenous nations policy, with a focus on Indigenous self-governance and economic development in the United States, Canada, and elsewhere.

See additional information available for faculty and staff affiliated with the:

- College of Social and Behavioral Sciences
- Institute for Environment and Society (formerly, Institute for the Study of Planet Earth)